LONDON. May 11.-The newly inaugurated offensive movement of the allies over a long section of the front in Belgium and of the alles over a long section of the front in Belgium and northwestern France has developed a general engagement of consider-able intensity. The official statement able intensity. The official statement from Berlin today concedes that the allies have won ground between Carency and Neuville, but attacks elsewhere are said to have been repelled. The Germans announce the capture of French trenches over a width of nearly one-fourth of a mile in the vicinity of Berry-Au-Bac.

Paris war office states that the allies made gains yesterday in Belgium, near Arras, France, and also at several points, and that German attacks were beaten back.

Russian claims to victories in the Carpathians are offset by the German war office report that further striking gains have been made. It is said that attempts of the Russians to halt the pursuit of the Austro-German forces were defeated with heavy losses to the Russians.

PARIS, May 11—2:30 p. m.—The French war office this afternoon issted the following statement on the progress of hostilities:

"In Belgium, near St. Georges, the enemy endeavored by a night attack to recapture the positions taken by us the day before yesterday. They were, however, repulsed.

before the war started, this foreign help is declared by the members of the various missions themselves to be wholly inadequate. It is so much more, however, than Serbia has ever had at any time in the past that she is pinning hopes of her continued existence to it with almost pitiful onfidence. When the present war broke out there was in all Serbia, with a population of 5,000,000 people, only 900 doctors. The services of these had to go at once to the army, leaving the civilian population without medical help. Of this heroic little band of doctors one-third have already fallen victims to the epidemic which they were fighting. With those who re-main and with the other doctors who have been sent by various foreign governments, together with 140 which the Serbian government secured by offering a salary of $150 a month to any physician who would come, there are now in all Siberia still very few more than 1,000 doctors. This is about one physician for every 5,000 of popu-

So scarce were the latter fol-lowing Serbia's last great battle that the bandages had to be taken from those less seriously hurt and re-used on grave cases. In the frightful fever which burns up typhus victims, cold packs have to be used. Aside from there not being enough doctors and nurses to apply these to more than one in a thousand, there was not in all Serbia even enough sheets for that purpose. All white cloth in Serbia that could possibly be used for bliding up the wounded was long ago dedicated to that purpose.

Recent events, quite evidently, have not shaken the president's calm. He was the same Woodrow Wilson last night as he was before the Lusitania was sunk, before American lives were sacrificed wantonly in this war; that is, he appeared to be. There was no passion in his voice, as there is in the voices of so many of his fellow the voices of so many of his fellow. countrymen these days. Hs was grave, but not sombre. He smiled several times during the speech, and grinned broadly when the infant child of one of the new-made citizens dressed a multitude of newly-naturalize citizens as such. Four thousand of the men in the great crowd were persons who had been naturalized in the courts of Philadelphia since the thousand the word 'United' in its title; and the first of this year. Accompanying man who seeks to divide man from them were their wives and children, man group from group, interest from probably 6,000 more. They occupied the whole ground floor of the coning at its very heart.

The galleries were packed with citizens who were there by special invita-tion. The vast stage, seating in itself am not saying this with even mearly 6,000 persons, was filled with a slightest thought of criticism of other choir of 4,000, in front of whom sat nations. Americans must have this about 1,000 of the most prominent men and women in Philadelphia-officials, politicians, business men, clergymen and leaders in all walks of life.

precaution was taken to sateguard the president, but nothing happened to justify these extra precautions. The affair was tumultuous in its enthusiasm, but in no way disorderly.

Besides the president the speakers were Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, Judge Joseph Buffington, of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, and Mayor Blankenburg, who preand Mayor Blankenburg, who pre-sided. All dwelt upon the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. Perhaps the mayor's speech was the most effective of the evening. His strong German accent only height-ened the effect of his declaration that he was for America first, in spite of his foreign birth. His speech was one of advice to the new Americans. He told them to beware of leaders who would control them, and to beware of holding too tightly to old memo-ries of their native land.

The President, "God Bless Him." The president was the last speaker. Just before he was introduced the entire audience, accompanied by the Police Band and by the big chorus, time was a Republican leader in New York State. Robert L. Milburn, ir., are sons of John G. Milburn, who is a prominent lawyer, a Republican in politics and in whose house at Buffalo President McKinley died.

Nine on the list are lawyers, one a physician, one a banker and one an insurance agent. All are closely related to or are very friendly with members of former administrations.

God bless him, the president of the United States."

Like one man, the whole audience rose and yelled. Cheer after cheer rocked the big structure. Whenever it started to abate someone among the new citizens would propose more cheers and shouting would begin again. The heartlest cheers were given when a man in the gallery shouted: "Three cheers for the man of peace." The enthusiasm was heightened by the fact that patriotic pictures, showing Washington and Lincoln, were thrown on a screen in the rear of the stage.

STRIKING PARALLELS IN LUSITANIA AND TITANIC DISASTERS

Striking parallels are afforded by the Lusitania and Titanic.

John Jacob Astor, millionaire, went to his death gallantly on the Titanic after helping women to safety; Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, millionaire, perished after giving his life-belt to a woman.

Henry B. Harris, noted theatrical man, went down with the Titanic: Charles Frohman, well known theatrical producer, perished on the Lusitania.

Jacques Futrelle, a brillians writer at the zenith of his career, was a Titanic victim: Justin Miles Forman, an author of note, is among the Lusitania's missing.

William T. Stead, an English journalist, died on the Titanic; Elbert Hubbard, well known American newspaper writer, sank with the Lusitania.

Isador Straus, philanthropist, met death on the Titanic; Lindon Bates, jr., of the Cunard company, had given up business to further Belgian relief work and died on the QUEENSTOWN, May 11.—Lady Allan, wife of Sir Montague Allan, of Montreal, left on a special train today for London. Lady Allan's back was injured, but she was well enough to travel under the care of several doctors and nurses. A number of other survivors went to London with her.

Probably the most unconcerned of the survivors is the eight-month-old son of Mrs. H. Booth. The mother lost her life, but the father has been located at a hotel in Ottawa.
